Mattel Privacy Statement

Nov 4, 2024

At Mattel, we empower generations to explore the wonder of childhood and reach their full potential.

This Privacy Statement is where we tell you how Mattel, including our affiliates and subsidiaries (including, but not solely, Mattel, Inc., Fisher-Price, Inc., American Girl Brands, LLC, HIT Entertainment Limited, Mega Brands Inc. their affiliate and subsidiaries) (collectively, "Mattel") handle your personal information and let you tell us what we can do with it. Mattel's complete list of entities, affiliates, and subsidiaries ("Mattel Group of Companies") can be found on the Mattel Group of Companies page. This Privacy Statement applies to personal data collected and processed by Mattel through our websites, applications, features, or other services that post a link to this Privacy Statement (collectively, the "Services"), as well as personal data collected and held by Mattel offline, which we may combine with online data.

When we talk about "personal information" or "personal data," we mean information that tells us who you are, where you live, and how we can contact you. We get this information in many ways and from many different places, including from third parties. Some personal information we collect may be considered "sensitive" under various applicable laws. It can be things you give to us directly, like your name, phone number, and email address when you sign up for an account or buy something from us. It can also be things you cannot see that we collect from your computer or mobile phone while you are on our websites, mobile apps, or social media channels. The personal information we collect, such as IP addresses, cookie identifiers, or mobile phone IDs, allow us to send you videos and other content about our toys, movies, and games that we think you may like to see.

In some instances, to comply with good privacy practices and the law, we may de-identify or pseudonymize previously personal information so that it becomes non-personal, such as aggregating and/or or converting it to a code, sometimes using a function commonly known as "hash", or otherwise removing characteristics that make the data personally identifiable to you. We maintain and use de-identified data without attempting to re-identify it, except where permitted by applicable law, such

Device ID/Interaction Information

Mattel and our third-party business partners (including any third-party service providers or third-party content, advertising, and analytics providers) may use a variety of technologies, including cookies and pixel tags, that automatically or passively collect information whenever you access, use, or otherwise interact with the Services ("Device ID/Interaction Information").

Cookies and Related Technologies

A cookie identifies your computer or mobile device. It does not show who you are by name, but does let us know you or someone in your household used the same computer or mobile device that visited a website earlier and can in some situations be connected to a name or a household. It will usually be a file named something like —abc@example.com.txt. If you open one of these files, it will show some random letters and numbers like: "HMP1example.com/04058205*".

There are different types of cookies. The most common are session cookies, which are temporary. They are used by nearly all websites to allow things like shopping carts to work, even if you aren't logged in to your account. They simply tell the server that all your requests came from the same computer and should be treated as a single visit to a website. These temporary cookies are deleted when your visit is over, or after a period of no activity (when you make no keystrokes or your mouse stops moving, after about 20 minutes or so).

Permanent cookies, also called persistent cookies, are also common. These cookies are used to identify your computer or mobile device over multiple visits to a website. These are the ones that handle your request to "Remember Me" or "Keep Me Logged In" to a website or app.

These permanent cookies are also used to send you advertisements based on the websites you visit and the content you view during those visits.

They are also used to tell us how long you stay on a site, how you move through the site, and other activities like the content you view or the mouse clicks that you make. They are also used to count the number of visitors to a site, as well as how

For a list of our major technology partners for our Mattel Sites, and the choices and controls they may offer about collection and use of information, read the THIRD-PARTY TECHNOLOGY LIST.

Required/Strictly Necessary Cookies. They make our websites work. Without them, you may not be able to view web pages and video content or buy something because the ability to store your information in a shopping cart has been turned off.

Functional Cookies. They make our websites work better. For example, when you choose to read a site in Spanish on your first visit, the next time you come back the site will appear automatically in the Spanish language. Not having to select a language preference every time makes it more user-friendly for you.

Analytics Cookies. They are a type of functional cookie that tells us how well our websites are working. For example, we can learn how many visitors to our websites buy something and how many leave without viewing or clicking on anything.

Advertising Cookies. They tell us what you are interested in based on the websites you visit and the products you buy. That information allows us to send you ads, videos, and other content that better fit the things you like or need. They also allow us to limit the number of times you see the same advertisement.

Other Technologies We May Use

Proximity-Based Beacons. These are small, wireless transmitters that use low energy Bluetooth technology to send signals to other smart devices in their proximity and can be used by mobile applications you have installed on your phone to help locate a device's location. We may use beacons when your device interacts with the Services, typically through a mobile application, to give you information about products as you walk through a store. Beacons only talk to your device one-way when you get close enough and only after you have given permission in your device settings.

Pixels. These are small graphic images or other web programming code (also known as web beacons or tags) that may be included in our web pages and email messages. These and similar technologies may be used by us and our third-party providers for a number of purposes, including to deliver advertising cookies to your computer or for other marketing and targeted advertising purposes, monitor website activity like counting visitors to the Services, monitor how users navigate website usage behavior. SDKs are software packages that contain a set of tools that can be used to help build applications and implement new features in existing apps including those that collect data from your device.

In addition, we may use a variety of other technologies that collect similar data for security, fraud detection, and maintenance purposes.

Interest-Based Advertising/Third-party Advertising & Analytics Companies & Similar Third Parties

We may use third-party business partners, such as analytics companies, ad agencies, network advertisers, and others who provide us data about the Services, users, and our advertisements (such as what products and services you're interested in based on the websites you visit, the content you view online, and the products you buy). These partners deliver ads to you on behalf of the Services and elsewhere online. We and our third-party business partners collect certain data about your visits to and activity on the Services and other websites and services, and may use this data to send you ads for products and services that better fit the things you like or need and to assess the effectiveness of our advertising. We may also share (or permit third parties to collect) certain data, such as Device ID/Interaction Information, aggregated or de-identified, pseudonymized or hashed data (including email addresses), with these third parties for similar purposes.

Third Party Tracking Technologies

These third-parties may set and access their own tracking technologies on your device (including cookies, pixel tags or other technologies) and may otherwise collect or have access to your personal data over time, including about your visits to the Services as well as other websites and online services, some of which may be personal information or personal data under various local laws. Companies that we share data with, including ad agencies and networks, may use the data, often in combination with their existing data, in order to present more relevant advertisements that may be of interest to you, and to help us and third parties to do the same.

Here are some examples of our interest-based advertising practices:

- We Learn About People Who Have Similar Interests. We may learn that people who buy children's clothing also buy toys and games for children within that same age range. Knowing this, we may send ads for toys and information about the things you have already shown interest in offline. In this way, your experience as a consumer is more personal across all your buying channels.

- We Know You Across All of Your Devices. Linking together your computers, tablets, and phones allows you to log into your account from all your devices or pick up where you left off in a video or movie that you were viewing on a different device. For example, you might search for our entertainment content on your laptop, click on a Google search result link which we have sponsored, and then later be able to purchase that same product after seeing an ad on your mobile phone.
- We Match You Across all Accounts. We may share your email address with social media companies or use their technology on our websites so that we can communicate with you when you are on social media. We also do this matching to learn if you saw our ad on social media, and if you clicked on it, and then came to our website to buy something. This helps us know if we should continue to buy ads on social media.

Our Tools. You can control how your personal information is used for interest-based advertising by visiting the Mattel Privacy Choice Portal. You can also opt out of certain cookies by modifying your cookie settings. You can also go to https://globalprivacycontrol.org/ to download the GPC web browser plugin that tells our website your privacy preferences for cookies. We will honor your privacy rights according to the GPC signal you set.

NAI/DAA Opt-Out. Some of the companies we use may be members of the Network Advertising Initiative (“NAI”) or Digital Advertising Alliance (“DAA”). The NAI provides information regarding targeted advertising and the opt-out procedures of NAI members, including opt-out mechanisms for web browsers, mobile and other connected devices, and a tool to opt out from participating NAI members using your hashed email address for interest-based advertising. You may also want to visit the DAA's website, which provides information regarding targeted advertising and offers an opt-out for DAA-participating companies. To learn more about interest-based advertisements from participating third parties in Canada, please visit the Canadian DAA online choice page at https://youradchoices.ca/en/tools.

Google Analytics. We use Google Analytics, which use cookies and similar technologies to collect and analyze information about the use of the Services and report on activities and trends. The Services may also collect information about the use of other websites, apps, and online services. You can learn about information Mattel could have otherwise used that is specific to you or your browsing history. The same way a printed newspaper advertisement addresses a large number of readers generally and no one reader in particular, your advertisements after opt-out will be general in nature and are placed by Mattel to advertise to the general public. Your opt-out choices are also browser and device specific; if you disable your cookies or upgrade your browser after opting out, or if you use different computers or browsers, you will need to indicate your opt-out choices across those other computers and browsers.

Other Websites & Mobile Application Content

Precise Location Data. We always get your permission before knowing the exact location of your device (also called “precise geolocation”). You may turn off collection of precise location data by adjusting your browser or device settings. Despite this, Mattel may collect and know less specific location information, for example, that your device is anywhere within a broader city, postal code, state or province based on other data we collect, such as IP address, without asking for your permission (called “approximate” or “general location”). For example, we will not seek your permission before knowing you are somewhere in Barcelona, Spain.

Session Replay Technology. Mattel may record your interactions with the Services, such as what pages you visit on the Services, how long you visit those pages, and any links you click or information you provide. We use this information for our internal business purposes, such as for website analytics, to improve the Services and our products and services, and to address functionality issues.

Plugins. They collect and send information back to the company that created them when you have an account with them and are signed into their services. An example of a plugin is the Facebook “Like” button. Plugins function according to the privacy policies and terms of the company that created them, even though they may appear on our Services.

Logins. You may log in to our services using your account with another company such as, for example, “Login with Google.” We have access only to the information you allow us to receive from your account settings with that other company. Like plugins, function according to the privacy policies and terms of the company that created them, even though they may appear on our Services.

User Content. We may offer features where you can submit data to us, including to post or submit, without limitation, information, comments, reviews, messages

©2025 Mattel

Third-party Content and Links. Our Services may include content that is served by someone else or links to third-party content or sites we do not control. The third-party operators and content providers use their own cookies or other tracking technology, and they may independently collect data from or about you. Mattel is not responsible for the privacy policies and terms or practices employed by any third-party.

For a list of our major technology partners for our mobile apps, please see the MOBILE THIRD-PARTY TECHNOLOGY LIST.

How We Get Your Personal Information

You Share it Directly

You give your personal information to us. It can be things like your name, phone number, and email address when you sign up for an account or buy something from us.

You Interact with Websites, Mobile Apps & Emails

We collect your personal information in ways you cannot see from your computer or mobile phone while you are on our websites, mobile apps, and social media channels through cookies and other tracking technologies. We Get it From Other Companies with the terms of that third-party. Also, both we and the third-party may have access to certain data about you and your use of the Services and the third-party social media channel. In addition, as you may agree to with a third-party service, we may receive data about you if other users give us access to their profiles and you are one of their “connections” or data about you is otherwise accessible through your profile or similar page. The data collected and stored by the third-party remains subject to the third-party’s privacy practices, including whether the third-party continues to share data with us, the types of data shared, and your choices with regard to what is visible to others on that third-party service. The third party may allow you to remove the application or feature, in which case we will no longer collect information about you through the application or feature, but may retain the information previously collected.

Our service providers will use your personal information only to help us do these things. Our contracts with them prevent them from selling your personal information to other companies or using it in any other way. Children's Personal Information & Online Safety

Last Updated: May 14, 2024

This Children's Privacy Statement applies only to the websites or platforms targeted toward users younger than the age of 13 ("Child" or "Children") that are owned by Mattel, including our affiliates and subsidiaries (including, without limitation, Mattel, Inc. Fisher-Price, Inc., American Girl Brands, LLC, HIT Entertainment Limited, Mega Brands Inc. and their affiliates and subsidiaries (collectively, "Mattel"). This Statement provides details regarding data we may collect from Children and supplements our Privacy Statement. This Statement applies to personal information collected and processed by Mattel through our websites (the "Mattel Sites"), applications, features, or other services that post a link to this Children's Privacy Statement (collectively, the "Mattel Services").

For information about how Mattel treats data collected from or about users aged 13 and older, please see our Privacy Statement, including the specific sections that might apply to where you live.

What Are Mattel's Children's Privacy Practices? (Summary)

Mattel Services which are directed to and accessed by Children call for certain more restrictive privacy practices. Some Mattel Sites or areas of Mattel Sites with content directed toward Children can be identified by "kids" or "play" in the domain or any Personal Information we have collected about your Child and would not re-display to other users, like their birthdate (if we are restricting certain ages from certain Mattel Services) or to customize their experience by collecting non-identifying information like their gender, their likes and dislikes, and hobbies, etc. This information may be used in aggregated form to help us understand our visitors and improve our products and Mattel services.

- We do not ask for more Personal Information than is necessary for a Child to participate in the activity.
- We take steps to prevent Children from posting or publicly disclosing Personal Information without parental consent, such as monitoring or screening and use of filtering technology.

If you are the parent of guardian of a Child who uses the Mattel Services and have questions, you may contact us using the information in the "Contact Us" information referenced at the bottom of our Privacy Statement.

What Information Does Mattel Collect from Children and How Is It Used?

Mattel might collect an email address and first name (or screen name) from your Child without your consent, but only in the following special cases:

- To participate in special activities, like scavenger hunts, personalized pages, games or clubs, we might ask your Child to register. They can often do so anonymously by just providing a first name or username, and password. When we ask for your Child's first name, we encourage them to use a "screen name" (not their real name) that only they know. Sometimes we will ask your Child to make up a special password so that only they can see their customized areas of Mattel Services. As COPPA requires, we will get your permission should we ask your child to provide additional Personal Information to participate in such activities.
- We may sometimes need a Child's email address, your email address, or both. We may ask a Child for your email address, so we can notify you of your Child's interest in Mattel Services. In the limited circumstances where we might collect your Child's email address without getting your consent first, we ask your Child for your email or mailing address so that we can notify you of your Child's request and get your permission or give you an opportunity to opt-out. When we ask for your permission, we will tell you ask for your Child's email address and only use the friends' email address to send the message, after which the friends' email addresses are deleted.

- If a Child signs up for an email newsletter or other activity that requires multiple online contacts with the Child, we also ask the Child for a parent's or legal guardian's email address, so we can notify you and give you an opportunity to opt out.
- Occasionally, Mattel has special activities or promotions, like sweepstakes or contests that are open to Children. We ask your Child to give us your email address, so that we can tell you that they have registered in a promotion or for a service. If we need more than an email address and first name (or screen name) to enter your Child in the promotion, award a prize, or offer the service, we will notify you, explain what information we need and why, and generally ask that you (not your Child) provide it. For instance, we might ask you for your mailing address so that we can send any prizes your Child wins to you, or for your phone number so that we can contact you if your Child has won. Any information we receive from you or your Child in the above special circumstances will be deleted from our database once the promotion, program or activity is concluded, and after any legally required period for keeping such information is complete.
- As otherwise permitted by COPPA.

Mattel may collect and store other Personal Information about Children if it is submitted by a Child with prior parental consent. Specifically, Mattel may collect Personal Information about a Child in the following instances:

a. We may offer enhanced Mattel Services, including subscription-based Mattel Services, which require a parent to register and establish the appropriate permission level for the Child. Content and activities available may vary depending on the Service. Parents will be provided with information on the type of content and activities their Child may access at the time they register and are always responsible for and in charge of their Child's account. Subscription fees may apply for some Services.
b. We do not keep your (or your Child's) email address unless you tell us it is okay. If social networking opportunities are available through Mattel Services, they are structured so that no Personal Information is shared between visitors unless parental consent is obtained. Similarly, no Personal Information is collected from Children to participate in these features except as described in this section, with parental consent, or as otherwise permitted under COPPA.

We also use such technology and work with third-party technology partners to facilitate the ability to play games, to recognize returning visitors, for research, and for other purposes, including to screen under-age visitors from certain features or areas intended for older visitors, and for other internal purposes. You may review additional information about these technologies in the section below.

The technologies that may be used to collect information include:

a. Cookies. A cookie is a data file placed on your computer or other device when you visit the Mattel Services or otherwise access our online content. Cookies may be used for many purposes, such as supporting functionality, for internal analytics and similar internal purposes.
b. Pixel Tags. We or our third-party service providers (such content providers and analytics companies) may set pixel tags (small graphic images or other web programming code, also known as “web beacons” or "1x1 GIFs" or "clear GIFs") and similar technologies on the Mattel Services. Web beacons can recognize certain types of information on your computer such as cookies, the time and date a page is viewed, and a description of the page where the web beacon is placed. Web beacons or similar technologies may be used for a number of purposes, including, without limitation, to count visitors to the Mattel Services, to monitor how users navigate the sites, and to improve your experience.
c. Embedded Scripts. An embedded script is programming code that is designed to collect information about your interactions, such as the links you click on. The code is temporarily downloaded onto your device from our web server or a third-party service provider, is active only while you are connected to the Mattel Services, and is deactivated or deleted thereafter.

Disclosure of Children’s Personal Information

Mattel may disclose Children's Personal Information to service providers who provide support for the internal operations of the Mattel Services and who do not disclose or use the Personal Information for any other purpose. These service providers may provide support services such as hosting the Mattel Services, designing and/or operating the features, or performing other administrative services. Mattel may provide these companies with access to Children's Personal Information in order for them to carry out the services they are performing on Mattel’s behalf. These service providers have agreed to maintain the confidentiality, security and integrity of this Personal Information they obtain from Mattel.
